

Juvenile Justice Program

The Juvenile Justice Program aims to address the behavioral health needs of court-involved youth in the Bronx, particularly those who may be struggling with diagnosed or untreated emotional and behavioral issues.

Our goal is to offer mental health treatment as a crucial alternative to incarceration, promoting better community adjustment and reducing recidivism. By emphasizing mental health treatment, the program aims to provide a constructive path forward for youth, ultimately benefiting both individuals served and the broader community. No insurance required.
